

IWP Stakeholder update – 22 July 2025

Changes affecting skilled work routes that come into effect on 22 July 2025

Following publication of the White paper: Restoring control over the immigration system and several stakeholder engagement events, this update addresses the questions and feedback raised during those sessions. provides additional information in response to the questions and feedback we received from stakeholders at these sessions.

The following Immigration Rules changes have come into effect today, 22 July 2025:

- Raising the skilled worker visa threshold back to degree level (RQF 6).
- Salary requirements for work visas (including Skilled Worker, Global Business Mobility and Scale-up) uplifted ahead of an upcoming review by the independent Migration Advisory Committee (MAC).
- Introducing a time-limited, interim Temporary Shortage List – providing time-limited access to the immigration system where it's proven that it's needed.
- Closing the social care worker visa route to overseas recruitment.

The measures have been carefully designed to ensure the immigration system works for the whole of the UK, ensuring we reduce reliance on overseas labour and train up our domestic workforce.

Work is underway to deliver the wider measures announced in the White Paper with further updates to follow in the autumn.

Changes to Skilled Worker Visas

Salary thresholds

- From 22 July, going rates and salary thresholds will increase and will apply to new visa applications as well as renewals. We expect sponsored workers' pay to progress at similar rates to resident workers. This is in line with normal practice for previous salary updates.
- The salary threshold for general Skilled Workers will be increased from £38,700 to £41,700 in line with the 2024 Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings (ASHE) data. The earnings data we use to set salary requirements are UK-wide, and not based on salaries in any particular area.
- For new entrants, the salary threshold will increase from £30,960 to £33,400.
- Lower transitional salary thresholds remain in place for those granted Skilled Worker visas under the rules in place before 4 April 2024. These have also been updated in line with the 2024 ASHE data – the £29,000 transitional threshold will be increased to £31,300.
- There are no additional transitional arrangements relating to these updates to salary requirements as the pay of sponsored workers is expected to generally progress at the same rate as the pay of other workers in the UK. Sponsors do not need to meet these updated salary requirements immediately for existing visa holders, but they will need to do so when they make further applications to extend their stay, change employment or settle.
- On 2 July we commissioned the independent Migration Advisory Committee (MAC) to review salary requirements (including discounts) to ensure they reflect the higher skill level required, and that international recruitment is not a cheap alternative to fair pay. We will consider the MAC recommendations carefully when we expect to receive them in approximately 6 months' time.

Case study

Current Situation	New Skilled Worker Salary Threshold
Ibrahim from Nigeria has been working as a Chemical and Related Process Operative at Important Chemicals Ltd. for over a year on a Skilled Worker visa. Ibrahim's salary met previous threshold of £38,700. Ibrahim needs to renew his visa as it expires in September 2025.	Salary threshold for Skilled Worker visa increases to £41,700 from 22 July; Ibrahim's current salary of £39,000 will not meet the new requirement.
Impact on employer
In order to remain in the UK as a Skilled Worker, Ibrahim's current employer must increase his salary to meet the new threshold. Allowing international workers to be sponsored at lower salaries could undermine efforts to tackle shortages. Therefore, businesses must weigh the costs of training resident workers against the impact of importing workers from abroad.

Skills threshold

- The government has been clear that sectors need to reduce reliance on international recruitment. Workforce strategies will need to be a key part of this. We are updating guidance and carrying out extensive engagement to help guide sponsors through the changes.
- For further clarity on Skilled Worker visa eligible occupations and SOC codes from 22 July, see Annex A. This includes eligible occupations above RQF level 6, those included on the Interim Immigration Salary List (July 2025), those included in the Interim Temporary Shortage List (July 2025) and those that are no longer eligible for Skilled Worker visas. Eligible occupations can also be found here: Skilled Worker visa: Overview - GOV.UK.
- Sectors will still be able to recruit international workers with existing work rights already in the UK, but new access to the immigration system for roles below RQF 6 will need to be based on strong evidence from the Labour Market Evidence Group (LMEG) and recommendations by the independent MAC about which occupations should be retained or added to the Temporary Shortage List. It will also be time-limited and temporary, as well as conditional on clear workforce plans for building domestic skills in the UK. HMG may also add further conditionality to occupations on the TSL, following the conclusion of the MAC led review on the TSL which is now underway.

Case Study

New out of country visa application from an Engineering Technician	Impact of increase to RQF level 6 and role of the Temporary Shortage List from July 2025
Alex is an Engineering Technician from Australia who would like to come to the UK to work on a Skilled Worker visa. He has accepted an offer of a role with a UK company with a salary above £41,700. His role is now classified below RQF level 6, but it is included on the new Interim Temporary Shortage List (TSL) effective from 22 July 2025.	Alex's role is on the new TSL, allowing him to meet requirements for a Skilled Worker visa despite being below RQF 6. Alex must obtain a CoS from his sponsoring company to make his visa application. This case study shows the importance of adapting to new visa regulations, where roles may appear on the Temporary Shortage List. Sponsors must ensure compliance with updated salary thresholds and have a clear strategy for workforce development to facilitate visa renewals.

Transitional arrangements for Skilled Worker skills threshold rise to RQF 6

- Transitional protections apply to Skilled Worker visa holders already in the UK in RQF level 3 - 5 roles, provided their initial Certificate of Sponsorship (CoS) CoS was assigned by their sponsor before 22 July 2025. The visa application (and CoS start date) can be after 22 July, providing the CoS is still within its normal validity.
- These people can continue working in their current roles, extend their visas, change employment, take supplementary employment in occupations below RQF level 6 (degree level) and apply for settlement (Indefinite Leave to Remain (ILR)), subject to meeting the new minimum salary thresholds and any requirements in place when they make those applications. Transitional arrangements will not be in place indefinitely and will be reviewed in due course.

Case Study

Visa extension for existing Skilled Worker visa holder	Impact of increase in Skilled Worker RQF to level 6
Chen from China is working as a Manager in storage and warehousing on a Skilled Worker visa for over a year.	From 22 July 2025, new Skilled Worker visa applications must be for occupations at level RQF 6 and above, unless they are included in either the Interim Immigration Salary List or the Temporary Shortage List.

Chen's salary of £45,000 meets the new salary threshold, but her occupation is below RQF level 6. Chen needs to extend her visa as it expires in November 2025.	Chen's occupation as Manager in Storage and Warehousing is below RQF level 6 and is not included in the Immigration Salary List or the Temporary Shortage List. However, transitional arrangements apply to Chen as she is in the UK on an existing Skilled Worker visa.
Impact on Chen Under transitional arrangements, as an existing Skilled Worker visa holder, Chen can continue to be able to extend her stay, change employment, take supplementary employment, in occupations below RQF level 6, and apply for ILR subject to meeting new minimum salary thresholds and any requirements in place when she makes those applications.	Impact on employer If Chen chooses to extend her visa her employer can continue to sponsor her under transitional arrangements in her role as Manager in Storage and Warehousing. However, new access to the immigration system will need to be based on strong evidence from the Labour Market Evidence Group (LMEG) and be agreed by the independent Migration Advisory Committee (MAC). It will also be time-limited and temporary, as well as conditional on clear workforce plans for building domestic skills in the UK.

Labour Market Evidence Group (LMEG)

- The LMEG will gather and share evidence about the state of the workforce, training levels and participation by the domestic labour market, including at Devolved Government and regional levels.
- It will focus initially on sectors / occupations which are central to industrial strategy, which currently have high levels of reliance on migration for their workforce, or which are anticipated to in future and will make recommendations about sectors or occupations where workforce strategies are needed, or where the labour market is currently failing.

Changes to Global Business Mobility – UK Expansion worker route

- From today, 22 July, we are doubling the number of workers an overseas business can send to the UK to establish a new branch or subsidiary from 5 to 10.
- This change provides greater flexibility for businesses and enhances the UK's attractiveness as a destination for global investment and innovation.

Graduate Route

- We are reforming the Graduate route to ensure graduates are contributing to the economy and working in graduate level jobs. We will reduce the length of the Graduate visa to 18 months to ensure that those who stay in the UK transition onto graduate level jobs in quicker time. Further details will be provided well in advance of any changes.
- Graduates can still switch to a Skilled Worker visa while in the UK, provided they have a job offer from a sponsoring employer and meet all the requirements of the Skilled Worker rules from 22 July.
- New entrant discounts will still apply to the increased salary thresholds for Skilled Worker visas (as set out in the salary thresholds section above).
- The increase in the skills threshold to RQF level 6 will apply to those switching from other routes, including from the Graduate route. This is in line with past practice and means we are treating applicants new to the route the same, whether they are applying from the UK or overseas.

Consultation on planned changes to the Settlement route

- Later this year, we will consult on the detailed policy for earned settlement and earned citizenship, including how contributions to society and economy can reduce the length to settlement as well as other core requirements.
- We recognise how important these changes are to people and will listen to what people tell us in that consultation.
- We will make final decisions and provide details of how the scheme will work after the consultation, including on any transitional arrangements for those already in the UK.

Closure of Health and Social Care to new applications from outside the UK

- Overseas recruitment for care workers and senior care workers has ended on 22 July 2025. Since care workers were made eligible in 2022, the sector has made use of this route to fill vacancies but there have also been unacceptable levels of worker exploitation and visa abuse.

- We recognise the workforce challenges in the care sector, but we could not allow this situation to continue. It is also the Government's policy to reduce reliance on international recruitment in adult social care and improve domestic recruitment and retention.
- There is a large pool of Skilled Workers who have been brought to the UK since 2022 and are in need of new sponsorship. We strongly encourage care providers to engage with Regional Partnerships and make use of this source of labour. The sector can also continue to recruit those with general work rights as they do not have restrictions on their employment. This means, for example, that care providers will continue to be able to access students and individuals on the Graduate route with existing work rights.
- International workers who are already sponsored to work legally in the care sector can continue to extend their stay, change sponsors and, when qualified, apply to settle, including those who need to switch employers following a sponsor licence revocation. These arrangements will mirror the approach being taken for wider Skilled Worker visa holders.

Transitional arrangements

- For a transition period until July 2028, we will continue to allow individuals already in the UK in other visa routes to switch into Skilled Worker route as care workers. To qualify, individuals must be able to demonstrate they have been working legally for their sponsoring employer for at least 3 months before they apply to switch. These arrangements will be kept under review.
- Care workers already in the route will also continue to be able to apply to change employers and extend their stay in the normal way. As the Explanatory Memorandum accompanying the Immigration Rules makes clear, transitional arrangements will not be in place indefinitely and will be reviewed in due course.

Dependants

- Care workers and senior care workers, cannot apply to bring dependants unless they were employed as a care worker or senior care worker in the UK on a Health and Care Worker visa before 11 March 2024 and are still working in a care worker or senior care worker role Health and Care Worker visa: Your partner and children - GOV.UK.
